PRICE TWO CENTS

BILL FOR CLAY MINING IN PARK IS TO BE KILLED

Reconsideration by Aldermen Friday Agreed on at Conference of Nine Members and Mayor Kiel.

PUBLIC DISAPPROVAL CAUSE OF DECISION

Widespread Opposition to Proposal Included Suggestion of Recall of Aldermen Voting for It.

Mayor Kiel and eight members of the Board of Aldermen, at a conference this morning, reached a decision that the bill permitting the Highland Fire Clay Co. to mine clay under Forest Park, which was passed last Friday, should be reconsidered and killed at Friday's meeting.

The votes of the eight Aldermen, together with the nine who opposed the bill, will furnish the number of votes needed to reconsider and file, or kill, the measure. The Mayor said, after the Aldermen left his office, that there was no doubt that the action to be taken Friday would be a unanimous vote against the measure.

The Aldermen who attended the conference were Hart, Bergmann, Felt, Godfrey, Lohmann, the two Niedermeckers, Otto and Well. The Mayor said they called on him, without invitation, to ask his opinion, and that he gave it to them.

"I told them," the Mayor said, "that I still had no doubt about the merit of the proposal, but that I was convinced that public sentiment was opposed to it, and I means wish to respect public sentiment."

Mayor Not Against Measure.
"I was disposed to favor the bill, because it proposed to keep a large industry in St. Louis, to yield $75,000 to the city in five years, and to provide clay for the needs of the Government. I believe this could have been done without any damage to the park or danger to the public. But it is evident that the public would not have thought so."

"Mothers would have feared that their children, playing in the part of the park over the mines, might be caught in a cave-in, and they would have cautioned the children to keep away from the section of the park. Such a feeling, tending to restrict the public use of the park, would be most unfortunate, whether any foundation existed for it or not."

Alderman Hart said he and the other aldermen who voted for the bill were still satisfied of the intrinsic merits of the measure, and were convinced that the mining work would not hurt, proven harmful to vegetation or dangerous to the public. But, he said, the widespread showing of public disapproval had caused the decision to kill the measure.

Among the protests received by the Mayor today was that of Dwight F. Davis Jr., 10 years old, 16 Portland place, whose father, Dwight F. Davis, former Park Commissioner, is now a Major on Gen. Wright's staff in France. The letter read: "I have seen in the papers that you are going to allow clay to be mined in Forest Park. I think it ought not to be done, for the parks belong as much to the people as to you or any other person. You are used to be Park Commissioner, and I wonder how he would take it if he knew how Forest Park is going to be turned into a clay mine. He would write you, only he is in Europe."

Opposition to the bill has been growing among the civic and improvement associations in the Chelsea district, south of Forest Park, and it has been marshaling experts who insist that clay cannot be mined without damage to the surface. Among these are L. M. Richardson, an engineer and former professor of mining engineering in the University of Georgia; George W. Gittins, owner of a clay mine at Tamm and Clayton avenues; and George J. Berresheim, owner of a clay mine on the Clayton road.

Resolution on Recall.
Seven organizations at a meeting last night adopted a resolution authorizing the circulation of petitions for a recall of the Aldermen voting for the bill. The organizations which were taking the lead in the opposition are the Central Avenue Improvement Association, South Forest Park Residents' Improvements Association, Benton Betterment Club, George Dewey School Patrons' Alliance, Gratiot School Patrons' Alliance, Roe School Patrons' Alliance and St. James School.

Other organizations which appointed committees to investigate the mining proposition are the Civic League and the Tenth Ward Improvement Association. A committee of the Chamber of Commerce also was named to consider it.

On the other hand, the Highland company, under the direction of

Official Emblem for Second Red Cross Fund

SUBSCRIBERS to the War Fund now being raised receive emblems which differ in appearance from the membership buttons which were given to contributors of $1 last fall. The new emblems are rectangular bits of celluloid, with a red cross on a white field within a blue border, and with the words "2nd War Fund." A pin is provided for women, while the pattern for men has a flap which fits the coat lapel, with the words, "Save a Life," on the flap.

RED CROSS PARADE TO BE LIKE VEILED PROPHET

Floats Will Move on Car Tracks, But Will Show War Scenes, Not Comedy.

Floats like those of the Veiled Prophet's parade will be displayed tonight in the Red Cross parade on Olive street, from Grand avenue to Twelfth street. The Red Cross floats will resemble those of the Prophet's parade in the manner of their decoration, and in being propelled and lighted by street railway power.

But while the Veiled Prophet's floats were pictures from history or fable, treated often in a spirit of comedy, the floats to be seen tonight will show actual scenes of today of such character as not to admit of comedy treatment.

Canvassing teams began active solicitation of industries and business establishments this morning. This canvass will continue within prescribed limits until Saturday, when a free-for-all canvass will be begun. The quota for the St. Louis Chapter, including East St. Louis and St. Louis County, is $1,850,000, but it is intended to raise more than $2,000,000.

What Floats Will Show.
The seven floats in the electrical pageant, which will follow the military division of the parade, will show the following scenes:

First float—A shipping pier loaded with surgical dressings, hospital supplies, knitted garments and other Red Cross shipments.

Second float—Red Cross ship, laden with supplies for European battlefields and base hospitals.

Third and fourth floats—"No Man's Land" between first line trenches of the allies and the American army and the Germans, showing stretcher bearers bringing in wounded and men at listening posts. First line dressing station in dugout. First aid station—nurses and surgeons at work wearing gas masks.

Fifth and sixth floats—Road leading back to base hospital with ambulances on road, wounded on all sides, being bombarded with shells. Base hospital full with wounded, nurses and surgeons, being bombarded.

Last float—The personification of the poster, "The Greatest Mother in the World," showing a woman clad in the garb of the Red Cross holding in her arms a wounded soldier on a stretcher.

The first part of the parade will include the Jefferson Barracks Band, a section of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station Band, a detachment of United States Marines, the First and Third Regiments, Missouri Home Guard, the Famous & Barr Girls' Fife and Drum Corps, the Boy Scouts and Red Cross units in uniform.

The parade is to start at 7:45 p. m. from Grand and Laclede avenues. After Twelfth street is reached there will be music by the bands and speaking by Charles M. Hay and others. The floats will remain on a sidetrack, illuminated, as demonstrations of Red Cross work.

Taft Here Thursday.
At Thursday night's meeting in the Coliseum, former President Taft will be the chief speaker, and Maj. George W. Simmons will also speak. N. A. McMillan, chairman of the finance committee of the St. Louis chapter, will preside. A detachment of the Great Lakes band will play. The first St. Louis business firms to report 100 per cent—all employees subscribers to the present campaign—are the Swift Shoe Co. and the Blanks-Wencker Candy Co. office force, each with 85 employees. The shoe company's employees subscribed $100 and those of the candy company $125.

TOO LATE TO GET INTO SENATE RACE HAWES CABLES

Attorney, Who Is in Madrid, Spain, Replies to Suggestion That He Authorize Filing of His Name.

WON'T BE HOME TILL THE MIDDLE OF JUNE

Says He Believes Six Weeks Too Short a Time to Organize and Make Successful Campaign.

HARRY B. HAWES has sent a cablegram from Madrid, Spain, to Campbell Cummings, a St. Louis attorney, in response to a message from Cummings urging Hawes to authorize the filing of his name as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in the August primary.

Hawes' reply is taken by Cummings as a definite refusal to run. Cummings, in giving out the message, announced that he would support Senator William G. Gardner's appointee, for the nomination, against the expected opposition of former Gov. Folk. The term of the Senator to be elected in November will be the unexpired term of the late Senator Stone, expiring in 1921. June 7 is the last day for filing candidates.

Hawes is in Spain with Mrs. Adolphus Busch, whom he escorted from St. Louis. They plan to return to the United States via Cuba, but have encountered many delays. His cablegram, the wording of which indicates possible minor mistakes by operators unfamiliar with English, is as follows:

Expected to finish mission for friend in six weeks, now more than six months. No letter or paper during absence, therefore in complete ignorance of radical economic and political changes. Cannot reach home before middle of June. Unusual opportunity must see, but believe six weeks too short a situation in which to organize and make successful campaign. Show back to my wife. Very grateful for loyalty of yourself and friends.

It is still uncertain whether any third candidate will contest with Willey and Folk for the Democratic nomination. The closest friends of Attorney General McCallister are known to have advised him against running before 1920, when he will complete his term in his present office.

M'ADOO REMOVES RAILROAD PRESIDENT FOR DISOBEDIENCE

Appoints New Head of Virginia Line When Orders Are Not Carried Out.

WASHINGTON, May 21 (By A. P.).—C. W. Huntington of New York has been removed by Director General McAdoo as president of the Virginia Railway for disobedience of the Railroad Administration's orders for maintenance and improvement of his road. J. H. Young of Norfolk, Va., has been appointed Federal director of the road.

The Virginia is a coal carrying road, running from Deepwater, W. Va., to Norfolk, Va.

Huntington is the first railroad president to be removed by McAdoo, and it was hinted today at railroad headquarters that similar action might be taken against other executives who do not co-operate well with the Federal management.

The complaint against Huntington was that he had refused to comply with suggestions and orders of the railroad administration, consulting at length with the road's counsel before carrying out instructions.

The action against Huntington removes him executive chief of the railroad, but leaves him as head of the railway corporation which is required to pay his salary out of corporate funds furnished by the Government as compensation for use of the road rather than out of operating funds.

AIRPLANE STAMPS WITH PLANE UPSIDE DOWN BRING $20,000

E. H. R. Green Pays Amount for 100 Printed by Error, and Each
Is Expected to Attract $250 Value.

NEW YORK, May 21 (By A. P.). A sheet of 100 of the new postal airplane stamps, but with the airplane turned upside down through an error made by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington, has been purchased for $20,000 by Col. E. H. R. Green of Texas, son of the late Hettie Green, it was learned here today. Over a "wind-up" counter at the Postoffice in Washington this sheet sold for $24.

Col. Green said here today he planned to retain a portion of the sheet for his collection and dispose of the other stamps among his friends.

GRACE LUSK IS NEAR COLLAPSE AT MURDER TRIAL

Spells of Weeping Become More and More Frequent as Her Time to Appear on Witness Stand Approaches

SOBS DURING MOST OF TIME IN COURT

Prosecution Prepares to Close Its Case Against Teacher Charged With Killing Doctor's Wife.

WAUKESHA, Wis., May 21.—With Grace Lusk on the verge of collapse in anticipation of her coming ordeal on the witness stand at her trial for the slaying of Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts, the prosecution today prepared to rest its case. During the three days she has listened to Dr. David Roberts swear that she had pursued him for months with threats of death, seeking to separate him from Mrs. Roberts, so that she might marry him, her spells of weeping have become more and more frequent. Toward the end of the cross-examination of Dr. Roberts, who was dragged into the most intimate details of his meetings with the defendant, she sat most of the time sobbing, with her head buried in her arms. It was in contrast to her earlier conduct.

At the close of yesterday's session Miss Lusk collapsed in her father's arms in the Judge's chambers. She leaned heavily on supporting arms in returning the half-block to the jail.

Several more letters written by Miss Lusk and found after the tragedy in her room were introduced by the State today. One, without an address, read as follows:

"This is the work of the man who said he loved me. God, forgive me. Pay Blanca for the house I have spoiled."

Another letter in an envelope addressed to Mrs. Lusk, which had not been mailed, was as follows:

"Why did you not keep the appointment I made at your request? Is it because you do not care to know the truth from me? I should think it would make you realize that there was something you should know. Most sincerely,

"GRACE LUSK."

Action at Chicago Suggested.
The trial was halted yesterday by Judge Martin Lueck while he ordered action looking toward the prosecution of Dr. David Roberts in Cook County, Ill.

This action came as the result of revelations drawn from the former State Veterinarian regarding his relations with Miss Lusk and of many meetings in Chicago. Dr. Roberts admitted he paid hotel bills. After announcing that in Wisconsin action was impossible because the statute of limitations had run, Judge Lueck called D. J. Hemlock, a member of the bar, before him and said: "I direct you to communicate with the proper authorities in Chicago and urge upon them immediate action looking toward the prosecution of Dr. Roberts because of the offenses he has here today admitted committing in that city."

Hemlock telephoned to State's Attorney Hoyne at Chicago who said that he would be glad to prosecute if the facts justified and requested that all evidence be sent to him. Action against Dr. Roberts by the Federal Government also was hinted by W. H. Steiner, a federal investigator who testified for the State.

Steiner's testimony dealt with a statement he obtained from Miss Lusk a few days after the tragedy. He said he asked Miss Lusk if she realized what she had done and that she replied: "Yes I do. I killed her because she called me such obscene names."

"Did you discuss any other matters with her?" he was asked.

"Yes. That's what I want to reserve. Those are matters for the Government," he replied.

Roberts Repels His Charges.
During his third day on the witness stand Dr. Roberts repelled his charges that Miss Lusk had pursued him with her attentions and threatened to break up his home when he sought to end their relations.

Much of his testimony concerns meetings with her in Chicago. Finally he admitted giving her money.

BREAKING CAMP AT FUNSTON; MEN NOW ARE "ON THEIR WAY"

Where They're Going Can't Be Told, but They Are All Starting With a Smile.

CAMP FUNSTON, May 21 (Passed by Censor)—The Funston boys are going—going over, over there. Where they go from here, or when they leave are points of information not made public. The men themselves know little about that and care less. Sufficient for them there is action afoot lots of action with trains and loading and paying, night and day working and speed such as has never been seen here before.

Surprise the men to what the big step they are about to take means, cover a range that includes everything. Headquarters alone knows what is taking place and headquarters is not telling.

Ready With a Smile.
Details of the biggest event the Middle West has ever staged must be withheld. Voluntary censorship makes it necessary, for though every officer and every private has written and telegraphed to his wife or more friends or relatives of his plans, the more intricate details must not be offered to those who might use it to work harm.

But, at any rate, every mother with a boy in "the bunch" may know he answered the call of "ready," with a smile on his face, and in many cases a tear of enthusiasm in his eye. And the few civilians who are seeing the sight of a lifetime can never tell of what they saw. Words will not tell it. A unit marching, led by a band blaring the strains of "Over There," standards and colors flying, thousands of canvas-clad legs striding in perfect rhythm, part orders in low voices barely distinguishable above the crunching of gravel. Confusion for a minute, and the offering of Kansas or Missouri or Nebraska, South Dakota, Colorado, Arizona or New Mexico, is on its way.

Proud of His Men.
An officer ranking so high it would practically be naming him to give his rank, stood back a distance and watched.

Unless he has seen it with his own eyes, he soliloquized. "Just a few short months ago, they were clerks and office men, farmers and mechanics. Now—to look at them, it is past belief. They are wonderful. Thank God, I am an American and a brother of these men."

And the big officer is not alone in his thankfulness. The Middle West may rest assured it is well represented in the American expeditionary force, and before the summer's close will hear of the work of its sons in barring the door to barbarism.

What plans the future holds for Camp Funston has not been announced. Whether a new division will be trained here or a replacement camp established is problematical. But certain it is that the empty barracks will not be empty long.

New German-Austrian Alliance Is Reported Opposed by Hertling

LONDON, May 21 (By A. P.).—"FRONTS" opposition to the recently arranged alliance between Germany and Austria-Hungary is voiced by Chancellor von Hertling and Foreign Secretary von Kuehlmann, according to reports received in The Hague and transmitted by the correspondent of the Daily Mail. The Chancellor and Foreign Secretary are reported to have said that they washed their hands of the entire matter, as they objected to the methods by which the military part of the convention was devised over their heads by the German higher command. Gen. Ludendorff is said to be insisting that the agreement be passed and signed at once.

The military sections bind each party to aid the other with all its forces against any and every enemy, thus compelling Austria to place all her forces at the disposal of Germany.

CROWDER EXPECTS MILLION YOUTHS OF 21 TO REGISTER

WASHINGTON, May 21 (By A. P.).—Estimates today by Major-General Crowder, Provost Marshal-General, indicate that probably 750,000 men will be obtained for the army by the registration on June 5 of all youths who have attained 21 years of age, since June 5 last.

Fully a million youths, according to Gen. Crowder's estimate, will be registered. At least one-fourth of them he thinks will be exempted on various grounds.

President Wilson, in a proclamation published today, formally fixed June 5 next as the date of registration.

The proclamation was issued in accordance with the act of Congress making the youths eligible for service. All men, whether citizens or not, are required to register, but excepting unusual cases, including men in the military service apply. Divinity and medical students are exempt.

MORE EVIDENCE PRESENTED AGAINST MRS. STOKES

Defense Is That Attack Was Not Upon Government, But Upon the Administration.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 21 (By A. P.).—Presentation of evidence against Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, wife of J. Phillips Stokes, wealthy Socialist of New York, was continued when the trial of Mrs. Stokes on charges of violating the espionage act was resumed in Federal Court here today.

Mrs. Stokes is charged with expressing opposition to "the Government" in a signed communication which appeared in a local newspaper. The defense as outlined by her attorney to the jury yesterday will be she made the statements, but that in using the word "government" she meant "the administration" or "the group temporarily in charge of the Government."

Among those who attended the trial yesterday was James Eads How of St. Louis.

MAN RUN OVER BY EXPRESS WAGON DIES OF INJURIES

Lock had crossed the street and was stepping to the curb when he lost his balance and fell backward between the wheels of the wagon. The rear wheels passed over his ribs, fracturing four of his ribs and hurting him internally.

Kerens was arrested, although witnesses said that he was not to blame for the accident. He was ordered held for the coroner.

Artillery Equipment Will Be

By Wire from the Washington Post of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A few weeks ago the details referred to in this dispatch would have been almost within the proscribed area of military secrecy, but recently the War Department has permitted the facts to become known because the situation to relieve national effort is thought to outweigh any danger attendant upon publicity.

These details are that May will see the transport of about 200,000 men abroad. That is practically assured by the present rate of flow.

Even better news remains to be told and that is that June will see the sending of fully 250,000 men. The plans, fully worked out, with possibilities of failure guarded against as well as may be, call for the movement of 250,000 men to France and Britain.

At that rate Christmas will be celebrated "over there" by something like 2,000,000 of our fighters, a large number of whom will be actually in the trenches, with others in training camps. And each man who goes will carry his full personal equipment, the artillery needs being supplied in France through purchases—not loans—of equipment.

GEN. KORNILOFF KILLED, HIS ARMY IN RETREAT

MOSCOW, May 21 (By A. P.).—Gen. Korniloff, the former Russian Commander in Chief, has been killed in a battle with the Soviet troops near Yekaterinodar. His army of 10,000 men has been defeated and is retreating.

The belief is expressed in Government circles that this ends armed opposition to the Bolsheviks in the south, as the remaining rebel chief, Filimonoff, is a small menace with his little army of 2000 men. The reported revival of the Kalednikov movement, the first step of which was the capture of the city of St. Petersburg, capital of the territory of the Don Cossacks, failed.

The Soviet troops regained the city on the day after the rebels had taken it and scattered armed bands in the city.

This gives full legal status and power to John D. Ryan, recently appointed director of aircraft production and chairman of the Aircraft Board.

FRENCH JON IN PAYING TRIBUTE TO MAJ. LUFBERY

Impressive Funeral Services Held in Small Frame Building Near Village Back of Lines.

U. S. FLYERS DROP
WREATHS ON GRAVE

American and French Generals in Command in That Sector Are Among Those Present.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY
IN FRANCE, Monday, May 20 (By
A. P.).—Before the body of Maj.
Raoul Lufbery was placed in the grave, near a certain French village, it lay in state in a room of a small frame building. Around it were hundreds of wreaths of flowers sent by American comrades, French aviators who had known him in the French army, and by French army corps.

At the top of all the wreaths was a little bunch of wild roses, and daisies to which was attached a piece of paper saying that it came from Maj. Lufbery's orderly. With tears in his eyes the orderly came up to the casket and reverently placed the flowers on it.

Official confirmation is still lacking to the report that the German airplane responsible for the death of Maj. Lufbery has been brought down by a French aviator.

The funeral of Maj. Lufbery was very impressive. The pallbearers, three American and three French aviators, carried the flag-draped coffin from the little frame building to a motor car for the trip to the grave.
The procession was led by an American band, a company of American infantry just from the trenches and a company of French infantry. Following the coffin were 200 American and French officers, including all of Maj. Lufbery's companions in the air service.

The American General commanding the sector northwest of Toul and a French General commanding an army corps also were in the party which drew up at the grave. While the service was being read one American aviator after another shined down from the sky, his motor shut off, until he was just overhead. Each threw out great bunches of red roses, which floated down on the coffin and the bare heads of the officers and caps of the soldiers, who were drawn up at attention.

At the conclusion of the services the French General stepped forward and said:

"On behalf of my comrades of the French army, I wish to pay respectful fraternal tribute to one of the heroes of the air, who was victorious 15 times, a son of the noble and generous republic which came to our assistance to save the liberties of the world.

"Rest peacefully, Maj. Lufbery, close by the martyrs to our great cause. Your glorious sacrifice will inspire in us the spirit of sacrifice till the day when humanity's enemy shall be finally vanquished. Good bye."

The American aviator from Maj.
Lufbery once served as a private soldier, and the chief of the aerial service also paid homage to the dead aviator. The firing squad fired three times across the grave, a bugler, sounded "taps" and another bugler, hidden in a nearby wood, echoed it. As the sound of the bugles died away all was silence except for the droning of the machines of Maj. Lufbery's comrades, patrolling the line high in the air, and occasionally the dull booming of distant guns.

About 10 o'clock Sunday morning a German triplane suddenly descended from the clouds, apparently because of engine trouble, until it was only some 1500 meters over the city of Toul.

Lufbery and the pilot of another machine made after the German, who quickly ran away from the direction of the fighting line. Eight miles away from the enemy's line Lufbery was seen to attack from under the tail, but then he drew off as his machine gun had jammed.
Two minutes later he attacked again from the same position and almost immediately his machine burst into flames.

"The Americans on the ground and hundreds of French men and women going to church along the country roads were horror-stricken as they saw the airplane, like a ball of fire, plunge earthward. Suddenly they saw the form of a man leap from the machine, when it was 300 yards up."

Lufbery's body fell in a little flowering garden, while his airplane, still burning, dropped to the ground 400 yards away. By the time the fired Americans had reached the spot the body of the famous flyer had been taken by the French to the little city hall, where it later was covered with the French tricolor and great piles of roses and wild flowers.

"Well, They've Got My Boy at Last," said a French aviator, who was

New Bishops Chosen by Southern M. E. Church at Atlanta Conference, One Who Declined

W. F. McMURRAY...
F. N. PARKER...
J. M. MOORE...
W. N. AINSWORTH...
JAMES CANNON...
W. N. AINSWORTH, 46, was born in Camilla, Ga. He was ordained in 1891 and has held pastorates in Macon and Savannah, Ga. Savannah is his home.

H. M. DU BOISE, 50, has been editor of the Quarterly Review, Nashville.
He has served in pastorates in the North Georgia Conference, but has given most of his time to literary work, being the author of several books. He has been pastor of St.
John's Church, Augusta, Ga., and the First Church, Atlanta.

An unusual case at the conference in connection with the election of the bishops was that of Dr. F. N.
Parker of the Louisiana conference, who, because he felt that "he had not been called by Christ" to fill the office of a Bishop, refused to serve after his election. The conference accepted his decision with reluctance. Dr. Cannon was chosen in his stead.

Parker's refusal, however, was not entirely without precedent. In several years ago the Rev. Atticus G.
Haywood was elected a Bishop at a conference in Nashville, but declined to accept because of duties at Emory College, Atlanta, of which he was president. At the next general conference, however, he was elected and accepted.

The chief reason assigned by Dr.
Parker for refusing to serve was ill health. When he appeared on the floor in answer to the notification that he had been elected Parker said:

"I am not persuaded that I am called by the will of the Lord Jesus Christ to the office."

The conference asked him to postpone his decision. The next day he reappeared on the floor of the house and told them that he had spent 24 hours in prayer and consideration and could not change the decision. A resolution was offered to allow him further time to consider, which brought forth a heated reply from the minister that: "My mind has been made up after full communion with God. I insist the conference make no more of it."

At many points along the front British and French reconnoitering thrusts were repulsed. We captured prisoners in fore field engagements and successful raids north of St. Mihiel.

London and Dover and other places on the English coast were successfully attacked last night with bombs.

PARIS, May 21.—The official statement issued yesterday said:

"There were violent artillery actions in the region of Hangard and south of the Aisne. French patrols obtained a success in Castel captured prisoners."

"Northwest of Rheims near Bermercourt French detachments penetrated as far as the third German trenches, carrying out destructive operations on the enemy's defensive works. They captured prisoners, one of whom was an officer, and valuable war material."

"The Germans attempted incu-sions against the French line in the Vaucouleurs Chevalier Wood region without result."

2 MADISON BANK ROBBER SUSPECTS HELD, HAD $13,320

Men Arrested in Cincinnati Hotel After Detectives Trail Two Women Friends
There From Chicago.

THIRD MAN AND LEADER MISSING

Police Believe He Has Been Dealt With Treacherously
by Companions—Gun-Men Mixed in Case.

Announcement was made by the police today of the arrest at Cincinnati last night of J. P. Clark and Alexander Mackeown, who are alleged to have participated in the robbery of the Tri-City State Bank at Madison, Ill., last Thursday, and of the recovery of $13,320 of the $16,000 stolen from the bank.

Information of the arrests was received from H. M. Mosher, local superintendent of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, operatives of which had located the men by trailing two women from Chicago to Cincinnati.

Private and city detectives at the same time let it be known that they are now working on the mystery of the disappearance of "Big Gus," reputed leader of the robbers, who they believe to have been treacherously dealt with by his confederates.

"Big Gus," they say, was driving the automobile in which the robbers escaped from Madison over the Mc-Kinley Bridge to St. Louis. He was not with Clark and Mackeown when they abandoned the car on Denny road near Manchester, Mo., in St.
Louis County, Thursday night.

Gaumen Went to De Soto.
Although he would have been expected to keep for himself the greatest part of the plunder, the $13,320 found when Clark and Mackeown were arrested and the known profigacity of their expenditures after the robbery accounts for most of the $16,000 stolen.

Detectives who traced Clark and Mackeown to De Soto, Mo., discovered that three St. Louis gunmen, heavily armed, had also gone there on a "fishing trip." There is believed to have been some contact between the disappearance of "Big Gus" and the presence of the gunmen in De Soto. A theory is that they were friends of "Big Gus," who went in pursuit of Clark and Mackeown after they had rid themselves of their leader.

When the bank robbery was reported the search for the robbers was taken up by Pinkerton detectives, and by the St. Louis Supervisor, Mosher, local superintendent, and City Detectives Kirk, Finan, Blake and King. They learned that after the two men abandoned their automobile they came into the city and hired a chauffeur to drive them to De Soto. They stopped at the Commercial Hotel there, spent money lavishly, got the chauffeur drunk, and after paying him $100 for the trip, hired a De Soto chauffeur for $20 to drive the St. Louis chauffeur back to St. Louis.

Miss Men at De Soto.
The detectives reached De Soto at 10:45 o'clock Friday night and learned that the men had been in the city in an automobile which had come there for them. The detectives came across the three "gunmen," who had also reached De Soto after the departure of the bank robbers. Each had two guns and ammunition. They were all in living were going fishing. The mystery of the disappearance of "Big Gus" had not developed at that time.

That ended the trail at De Soto, but in the meantime the private detectives agency had been following up the clew of the automobile license number. (George Turak, a Madison policeman, had noticed the robbers' automobile several days before the robbery and had noted the license number, which was 29-10 Illinois. That license was found to have been issued to Mrs. Ted Clark of Leland avenue, Chicago.

Detectives were sent to watch her flat, where a Mrs. O'Rear, known as Mackeown's "Loving," lives, who with her Friday night Mrs. Clark received a telegram and hired an expressman to haul trunks to the depot.
When the expressman called for the trunks, a private detective went along as a helper. He helped carry off five trunks and six suitcases and the Clark dog, and rode on the trunks to the depot and stayed with them in the baggage car all the way to Cincinnati. Another detective kept the women under surveillance on the trip.

At Cincinnati the women and the trunks went to the Havlin hotel.
A detective took a room adjoining the women's room, and Mrs. Clark the chambermaid who looked after their room. When the women left the hotel they were shadowed until they met Clark and Mackeown. The women were trailed to the Sinton Hotel and arrested.

The detectives have not yet identified "Big Gus." That is the name he was known by during the week they say he and Clark and Mackeown were in Madison preparing for the robbery. That much, they say, has been learned from Mrs. Gladys Mueller of 1103 Montgomery street and Miss Anna Peckman of 826 North Market street, who became acquainted with Clark and Mackeown in Madison, and who, they say, confided to them that they were going to "pull off a big bank job."

These women were arrested here Saturday night and questioned.
An application for requisition papers for the two men was sent to

GERMANS WILLED THE WAR KRUPP MAN'S DIARY SAYS

Quotations from "One of Our Most Representative Germans," in Notes of Dr. Muehlon, Former Director of Plant.

LONDON, May 21 (Special Cable).
—The Daily News has received from Bern, Switzerland, a diary compiled by Dr. Muehlon, one of the directors of Krupp during the first three months of the war. After lying undisturbed in Germany for three years, the diary recently has been brought across the frontier and will be published next week.

The text remains unchanged, but Dr. Muehlon is withholding from publication sections of his diary containing the activities of Krupp.
The names of personalities mentioned in the diary are also withheld, but they all, as can easily be understood, figured and still figure among the greatest in Germany.

The diary was compiled by one who was head of the political department at Krupp, and it will help historians not only to fix the responsibility for war, in so far as that has not been settled by Prince Lichnowsky, but to know, also, the sentiments which prevailed among high German circles at its outbreak. I have been permitted to read the manuscript and I send, in summarized form, a few entries," says the correspondent. The first gives an account of the greater length the text of Dr.
Muehlon's well-known charges against the German Government.

Others are:
"Aug. 16.—News from Berlin—A man who has just conferred with the Naval and Office Secretaries and military chief tells us all are in high spirits. Everything goes like clockwork and in a few days the German army will be all over France. He says the German fleet has looked for the British fleet in vain."

Unscrupulous Efforts Made.
"Aug. 27.—Under the direction of the Foreign Office great and unscrupulous efforts are being made to my amazement that we had willed the war and could easily have prevented it. I will not speak here of the methods, but I doubt their success."

"Aug. 28.—I spoke yesterday about my doubts with large circles of the most prominent men, but nobody shared my views. 'We must win the war by any means,' is their refrain."

"Sept. 5.—I had another conversation with the great industrial magnates about the division of the spoils.
An unabashed robber policy prevails.
One speaker declared that his industrial colleagues, Thyssen, Stinnes and Kirdorf, have thrown all their influence upon the side of a policy of force."

"Sept. 29.—Laconic but informing messages from the front from a man who has come from headquarters, where the Emperor received him, says that the outlook is unsatisfactory. I need not go into the disputes, but it is clear the German high command does not reckon on a serious opposition from the French near Paris and had not seen an enemy army which hurled our army back."

"Oct. 4.—An important man who has returned from general headquarters says the Emperor is not reckoning only for a short time daily. Von Moltke is somewhat apathetic. The real motive force and the coming man is Von Falkenhayn, who is supported by all."

Longway and Erie Wanted.
"Oct. 5.—I have had a talk with one of our best-known financiers. He says he 'only' wants Longway and Erie from France, because of their wealth, and the great need is for the greater part of Belgium, including Brussels and Ostend. The present Imperial Chancellor and Foreign Secretary seem to him unfitted for obtaining such terms."

"Nov. 1.—It is worth mentioning that I met a great German industrial chief who does not share the prevailing hatred and blindness." The final entry, which is not dated, reads:
"Today I met one of our most representative Germans, who told me
willed the war and could easily have prevented it. In a brief and moving preface to the diary Dr. Muehlon urges the German people to seek the whole truth."

said that, if the work of removing the clay was performed as provided in the ordinance, there would be no damage to the park. He said he had a practical knowledge of the subject, and that he had made an inspection of the Highland company's mines, adjoining the park, before he made a report on the matter to the Commissioner. The problem, he said, is one for a mining engineer, not a geologist. He said he was indifferent as to the fate of the bill, and was merely expressing a professional opinion.

Comptroller Nolte said he regarded 20 cents a ton as adequate compensation for the clay to be sold to the company, and said the city would have the right to check the company's weights, to insure full payment. He said it would be feasible to ask for competitive bids, and the Highland company was the only one which was in a position to tunnel into the park from outside. Any other concern, he said, would have to sink a vertical shaft in the park, which would not be permissible.

The proposed ordinance authorized a five-year contract between the Highlands company, of which Anton C. Stuever, a brewer and Democratic politician, is president, and the city. The Highlands company would obtain the right, under the contract, to tunnel into the park to a depth of 80 feet and take out clay from a large deposit that underlies about 43 acres between Clayton road, the grounds of the Mounted Police Station, Oakland avenue and McKley Drive.

The bill fixed 20 cents a ton as the price of the "No. 1" clay taken from the park, and provided for a minimum payment of $12,000 the first year and a minimum of $15,000 for each of the remaining four years of the term. It was required that the tunnels or drifts under the park should not be more than eight feet wide and that columns of soil and material 50 feet square be left as supports. The structure of clay which it was proposed to mine is said to be about six feet thick.

Kinsey Inspected Mines.
Before the Mayor and the Aldermen reached their final decision to kill the bill, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service was interviewed regarding the measure. He Men Arrested in Cincinnati Maintain Silence.

CINCINNATI, O., May 21 (Special).—Maintaining silence, two men and two women were arrested at the Hotel Sinton, the most familiar hotel in the city, refused today to give any information as to how they came to have $13,320 in a satchel when taken into custody.

The police are awaiting word from Madison, Ill., in connection with the robbery of the Tri-City Bank in that place of $16,000 May 9.

The men also are being questioned relative to the cracking of the safe of the Family Trust here, where $2500 was taken. Employees of the theater say they can identify one of the men. The men registered as Alexander Mackeown, 32, and Edward J. Adams, 43. The women registered as Mrs. Helen Mackeown, 24, and Mrs. Margaret Edwards, 24.
The former said that she had been married seven years.

Mrs. Edwards had a spaniel dog and a canary bird which were taken in charge by the police.

On Monday the women were taken about the city and went to the Union Central depot a number of times.
Monday night they were removed from the Hotel Sinton. A few hours later they were joined by two men, Mackeown and Adams.

PRESIDENT BEGINS UNDER NEW LAW TO CUT RED TAPE

Overman Act Provides Way to Make Changes in Executive Offices to Gain Directness of Effort.

W'DER SERVICE AND EFFICIENCY POSSIBLE

Wilson Can Now Weld or Divide Various Offices in Interest of Effectively Carrying on the War.

By HERBERT BAYARD SPOPE, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—When President Wilson signed the Overman bill, Monday afternoon, he took a long step forward in simplifying governmental operation. The pen with which he signed the measure became an instrument of demolition of the maze through which executive business wound a lengthy and harassed course, the accompanying delays always vexatious, often proving dangerous.

The purposes of the bill were defined by the President when, in urging its passage upon a Senator who had expressed himself as feeling that there was too much red tape swathing national business, he said: "I agree with you. We want to cut the red tape away. Give me the scissors which this bill provides."

The first action under the new law was taken in connection with the signal corps. The orders that were issued yesterday lent themselves to clarity and brevity because the power has been definitely concentrated in the hands of the President, who can regulate them without the artificial limitations imposed by the question of appropriations. There are other changes soon to be made for the sake of gaining directness of operation, but any idea that the Overman law will make the bureau for wide-sweeping changes in the nature of personnel of various executive bureaus is quite wrong.

Present Purposes Modest.
The Post-Dispatch correspondent can say with authority that the present purpose of the administration "are very modest." The plans in contemplation go to the matter of the rearrangement of authority which will make for greater efficiency and better service. It would not be far wrong to say that the new law will be of more value potentially than actually. It gives the Executive wide powers which at this time he has no intention of using in any big scale. It protects the actions of the administration which, under the spur of necessity, has sometimes been compelled, for the sake of progress, to take steps the authority of which the meticulous might have questioned. The new law legalizes them and makes possible their further development.

Those conversant with the general situation in Washington are expecting that the next subject to engage the President's attention will be the Ordnance Department. In that there are certain arbitrary divisions of authority which are maintained by virtue of special appropriations. To speed up production and simplify control it is likely that extra duties will be imposed upon F. R. Stettinius, Assistant Secretary of War. He will work in closer co-operation with B. M. Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board. These two, between them, will discharge some of the more important functions resting on the heads of the Ordnance Corps.

Can Weld Parts Together.
The Overman law will enable the President to weld together those of the executive bureau that fall into natural relationships. The law will be used more to build than to tear down. In fact, in spite of fears that such would be the program, it may be doubted if any of the existing agencies will be wiped out, though several will be thrown into one.

Under the new measure the President is empowered to give wide play to the authority and the usefulness of the War Industries Board. Up to now, valuable as the work of that body has been, there always existed a sort of twilight zone, arising from the lack of definitely ascribed powers of decision. The letter of the commission which the President sent to Baruch in February now takes on new life and force. The War Industries Board becomes finally authoritative instead of being largely advisory.

Authority Given President.
Under the act the President is given authority—

To consolidate or co-ordinate any executive or administrative commissions, bureaus, offices or agencies of the Government.

To transfer duties and functions and personnel of one office or bureau to another.

To give money appropriated for one office to any other office to which the functions of the former may have been transferred.

This new power is limited to matters related to the conduct of the war, these changes made under the law to continue in force for six months after the war.

No bureau or office may be abolished without a report to Congress. By way of showing that the Overman bill was not originated under the fire of criticism of a few months ago, it can be said that its provisions were asked for immediately before the beginning of the present Congress. At that time the Presdent submitted an outline of legislation that he regarded as necessary to the Democratic executive managers, and in a memorandum that was supplied to Claude Kitchen, Democratic leader of the House, Mr. Wilson wrote:

"The removal of all statutory obstacles to the most effective business organization of the departments, especially the War and Navy Departments."

Basis of New Law.
The basis of the new law was contained in an amendment submitted to the Senate in January, 1917, whereby a report was to be made to the President regarding the advisability of effecting a scientific co-ordination of the various departments of the Government. The investigation that followed showed the project not only to be desirable, but also practical. The President found himself embarrassed and his hands tied through the piling up of legislation by each succeeding Congress. The explanation lies in these facts:

The machinery provided by Congress through which the duties and powers of the chief executive must operate, and theoretically designed to facilitate the administration of the Government, has been made up of a patch work of legislation enacted at various times to meet special conditions or correct recognized faults, the enactments being largely by amendments to appropriation bills. These scraps of legislation have never been co-ordinated into a definite system and little or no attention has been paid to the relation of one department or one bureau to another. The result has been to involve the general organization in an endless tangle with conflict of authority and great duplication of effort and responsibilities.

Government Long Hampered.
"Swivel chair" authority and red tape precedent have been made the rule. It has long been recognized by both the Senate and the House that it was practically impossible to accomplish any important thing expeditiously, economically or even efficiently while the administration was hampered by a conglomerated and unrelated mass of complex and confused legislative requirements.

To a very large extent the Overman bill will do away with the false barriers that have been erected, not deliberately, but, nevertheless, continuously, beyond the war. There is no doubt that several of the reforms to be instituted will make so heavily for improvement that they will become permanent.

The first changes will be centered upon the bureaus that have been created to grapple with war conditions. They will define and intensify the relationship between these new activities and the departments which are, in peace times, charged with generally similar duties. As has been pointed out several times by the President, the new law gives him no new powers. Instead, it grants him the right to put to best and quickest use the powers he already has. It might be called the pivot upon which the Government's business has legally swung from a peace to a war basis.

ST. LOUISAN'S SKETCH WINS HONORS AT THE ORPHEUM

Porter J. White Effectively Brings Out Values in "The Visitor," by Oliver White.

Porter J. White is not captioned at the Orpheum this week, but to many in the audience his vigorous acting in a gripping sketch, "The Visitor," possessed itself of the actual headline honors. He has been in the past a popular Mephistopheles in the spoken version of "Faust," and in the present offering he is similarly an eerie stranger—an alcoholic tramp instead of the spirit of evil—who drops in upon a "Prosecuting At-

orney in his study with the astounding confession that he, the vagrant, is the actual murderer in the case wherein the attorney is using all his efforts to send another man to the electric chair.

White's vivid re-enactment of the crime kept his hearers a-tingle, and came an unexpected and strong denouement. He was capably aided by Chester Beach and Miss Maude Hackett. The sketch was written by a St. Louisan, Oliver White.

Mrs. Blanche Skrainka, St. Louis soprano, gives a song interlude, her salary for which will be donated to the Red Cross. She chose numbers in the florid style, with many difficulties in the way of scales and trills. These she attacked with courage and determination, evincing in her style the industrious application of many years. The selections are the "Ernani Involami" arie from Verdi's "Ernani," an "Adagio" waltz, sons, "Parla," and Donizetti's "Salut a la France," from "La Fille du Regiment."

Belle Baker, in her second successive week here, pleases the audience

ST. LOUISAN'S SKETCH WINS HONORS AT THE ORPHEUM

Porter J. White Effectively Brings Out Values in "The Visitor," by Oliver White.

Porter J. White is not captioned at the Orpheum this week, but to many in the audience his vigorous acting in a gripping sketch, "The Visitor," possessed itself of the actual headline honors. He has been in the past a popular Mephistopheles in the spoken version of "Faust," and in the present offering he is similarly an eerie stranger—an alcoholic tramp instead of the spirit of evil—who drops in upon a "Prosecuting At-

White's vivid re-enactment of the crime kept his hearers a-tingle, and came an unexpected and strong denouement. He was capably aided by Chester Beach and Miss Maude Hackett. The sketch was written by a St. Louisan, Oliver White.

Mrs. Blanche Skrainka, St. Louis soprano, gives a song interlude, her salary for which will be donated to the Red Cross. She chose numbers in the florid style, with many difficulties in the way of scales and trills. These she attacked with courage and determination, evincing in her style the industrious application of many years. The selections are the "Ernani Involami" arie from Verdi's "Ernani," an "Adagio" waltz, sons, "Parla," and Donizetti's "Salut a la France," from "La Fille du Regiment."

Hold up your end!

You can't deny it. You can't evade it. You can't close your eyes to it. No one else can do it for you. You MUST hold up YOUR end.

Right up with the fighting men—back in the hospitals, the Red Cross is working ceaselessly, tirelessly, pouring out its ministrations day and night to heal the wounded, tend the sick—hands and feet to the crippled, eyes to the blind, mother to the dying.

Carrying its merciful service into thousands of ruined homes, restoring thousands of broken lives, relieving thousands of their pain and disease, of their hunger and cold.

Hold up YOUR end—lest she fail. Back across the seas the call comes to you. You are less than a man or a woman—less than an American, if you turn away from it.

YOUR money is needed to help and sustain her. Give what you can—give all you can. She is counting on YOU.

Weakness Relieved by "Balmwort"

Many men and women gain no strength. The least exertion tires them. Dull aches, pains like rheumatism, depression, or "blues" come easily. Ambition and energy are always at low ebb. What is the cause? The cause may vary—but if the kidneys and bladder are not doing their work perfectly—you can make a bet—that's where the trouble lies. This lady suffered 12 years. Mrs. E. Klipp, 644 W. 12th St., Oak Park, Ill., writes: "Your Balmwort Kidney Tablets certainly have done wonders for me. I have been ailing for 12 years with kidney and bladder weakness, but feel like a NEW WOMAN NOW." All druggists sell them.—ADVERTISE-

Hope for Cyclops About Gone.
WASHINGTON, May 21 (By A. P.).—Hope of solving the mystery of the disappearance last March of the big American naval collier Cyclops, with nearly 300 persons aboard, virtually has been abandoned by the Navy Department. A high official said that "no reason could be seen for further hope that the loss of the Cyclops would ever be explained." The department, however, has not yet officially recorded the collier as "lost."

How Much Better to Extinguish a Fire Than to Allow Your Car to Burn—Even Though Insured!

Today a shortage of motor cars exists. "Motor" said weeks ago: "A car shortage is certain. There will be more buyers than cars".

If your car burns you may have to walk all season. So better take no chance with fire!

Fire costs money. It wastes materials. It kills people oftentimes.

It always brings great inconvenience. Did you ever walk 20 miles Alone at Night? That's what you may have to do some night if you let your automobile burn. Garages are not always nearby, you know!

Automobile fires can be prevented. President Wilson calls lack of fire prevention a "public dereliction."

A Pyrene extinguisher on your car banishes fire; for it gives you full control of any blaze.

The powerful liquid makes short work of gasoline fires. Aim Pyrene at the base of the flames and pump.

Now glance at the list on the right. Note how much money Pyrene saves you on the car you own.

How Much a PYRENE Will Save You On Your 1918 Car

15% reduction on fire insurance for all cars equipped with Pyrene! Note how much actual cash you save on your car each year. These savings for 1918 models are based on the rates promulgated by the Eastern and New England conferences. Rates in the Central and Far West are slightly lower, so the saving there will be correspondingly less.

C. D. McLURE, 74, KNOWN AS ST. LOUIS BONANZA KING, DIES

His Discovery of Granite Mountain, Mont., Silver Mine, Made Him and Others Here Millionaires.

FORTUNE DWINDLED IN LATER YEARS

Death Occurs at Missoula, Mont., Where He Had Recently Made His Home—Experiences in West.

Charles Derickson McLure, 74 years old, whose discovery of the Granite Mountain silver mine in Montana, in 1879, caused him to be known as a "Bonanza King," and made millionaires of several other St. Louisans, died at his home in Missoula, Mont., yesterday.

After his first fortune had dwindled he went there from St. Louis about two years ago in the hope of recouping his finances by developing mining property to which he had won title in long litigation with a former partner, Red D. Leggett of Butte.

McLure, at one time, was rated as one of St. Louis' leading financiers. He owned valuable downtown real estate, and until a few years ago was a director in the St. Louis Union Trust Co.

Experiences as a Pioneer.

He was born at Carrollton, Mo., in 1844, and came to St. Louis with his parents when 5 years old. In 1866, when 16 years old, he went West and started in business hauling freight in prairie schooners between Nebraska City, Neb., and Denver, Colo. In 1867 he drove a herd of 150 cattle from Denver to Virginia City, Nev., then at the height of its boom as a silver mining town. There he caught the mining fever. As a freighter and prospector he opened up the first road through the Milk River Valley, now part of the right of way of the Great Northern Railroad, and in the same year he filed a claim and opened a silver mine at Unionville, Mont.

After operating this mine until 1873, he took charge of the Centennial ore reduction mill at Butte and later he was interested in the Hope Mine at Phillipsburg, Mont.

Mountain Discovery an Accident.

McLure has often told his St. Louis friends that his discovery of the rich Granite Mountain silver lode, near Phillipsburg, was an accident. He was fishing alone in a little stream when the sun shining on a granite cliff reflected a metallic gleam. He made a closer examination of the cliff and found it to be of quartz-bearing rock. A year later, in 1879, he purchased a claim to this lode, known as the Granite Mountain claim. It was considered valuable, but inaccessible. With the aid of Charles Clark, a St. Louis street railway capitalist, he organized a company and started operations on what later was known as the richest silver mine in the United States. In addition to a great deal of silver, the quartz also contained gold in paying quantities.

More Than $10,000,000 in Dividends.

Among the St. Louisans who became rich through their purchase of Granite Mountain stock were L. M. Rumsey, Moses Rumsey, John I. Lidenberger, Edgar Lidenberger, Charles Clark, August B. Ewing, Paul Fust, Louis Fust, J. K. Cummings and Louis Dueswig. At the organization of the company they bought the stock at 10 cents a share. Before the boom was over it sold at $15 a share. The mine paid more than $10,000,000 in dividends.

In 1883 McLure purchased the James G. Blaine lode claim and formed the Bimetalline Mining Co., which also yielded large returns. Two companies later he had been consolidated into the Granite-Bimetalline Mining Co. The ups and downs of mining booms are shown in the fact that stock of this company is now selling around 35 cents a share.

When his dividend mines were no longer big dividend payers McLure invested in other enterprises with less success and his fortunes began to decline. The last of his St. Louis realty, a business building at 413 North Broadway, was sold for debt in 1912 to satisfy judgment for $124,832 held by the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

McLure's losses were said by St. Louis brokers today to be due to his investments in properties other than mining companies, his principal investments being in the United Railway Co., now a part of the United Railways system; the Merchants' Bridge Terminal Co., now owned by the Terminal, and the Madison Car Co., now controlled by American Car and Foundry Co. He is said to have sold his interests in these corporations at a loss and to have held on to his mining stocks too long, the result being that in the end he was forced to sacrifice only a few cents for the securities.

In 1898 McLure married Miss Clara Eder, a sister of George C. Eder, of 4819 Lindell boulevard, founder of the Edgar Zinc Co. They had eight children.

John H. Dickman of 4337 West Pine boulevard, of the brokerage firm of Wrenn & Dickman, today said a Post-Dispatch reporter how a part of his memory deprived him of his chance to be one of the Granite Mountain millionaires.

In 1880, he said, the only organized mining company in St. Louis was the Hope Mining Co., which had nothing but a prospect in the Montana silver field. Its office was in an alley between Morgan street and Franklin avenue, and Second and Third streets. McLure and Charles Clark were looking after the company's interests in Montana. One bright spring morning Clark arrived in St. Louis to make a report. Dickman and other stockholders of the Hope Mining Co. met him in the alley office.

McLURE'S GIFT MADE CATHEDRAL OF CHRIST CHURCH

The Rt. Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, Episcopal Bishop of Missouri, today wrote the following tribute to Charles D. McLure and asked that it be published, revealing for the first time that McLure's generosity made it possible to organize Christ Church as a cathedral.

"Many years ago, when I met Mr. Charles D. McLure in Phillipsburg, Mont., he was a young and vigorous prospector and had found mines and had entered on a career of developing mines.

"Subsequently I came in 1886 to St. Louis to be the Bishop of Missouri. Some time later I became a resident of St. Louis. Mr. McLure also came from Montana to be a resident here. We met at times, renewing acquaintanceship.

"One day when we were together Mr. McLure said to me: 'Bishop, I promised the Lord when I was in the mountains that if He blessed me with success in prospecting I would turn the sum over to the vestry of Christ Church as a gift from a friend.' Under the two appended conditions. 'He then inquired about Christ Church and its condition and added: 'If you want to make a cathedral of Christ Church I am ready to give you the sum of $25,000 to help you carry out that plan. I am ready to give you that sum and I require only two conditions: First, that Christ Church shall be changed into an organization from a parish church to a cathedral, and second, that my name shall not be known as the giver.'

"The vestry of Christ Church met and acceded by a unanimous vote to the first condition, and I undertook to respect his confidence by withholding his name.

"A few days after he brought to me the $25,000 in currency and I turned the sum over to the vestry of Christ Church as a gift from a friend. Under the two appended conditions. 'He then inquired about Christ Church and its condition and added: 'If you want to make a cathedral of Christ Church I am ready to give you the sum of $25,000 to help you carry out that plan. I am ready to give you that sum and I require only two conditions: First, that Christ Church shall be changed into an organization from a parish church to a cathedral, and second, that my name shall not be known as the giver.'

"Subsequently when the Schuyler House was built to be the cathedral parish house, Mr. McLure, I think, gave an additional $15,000 toward the cost of its erection. This sum did not pass through my hands.

"Under God's guidance and blessing the generous gift of $50,000, therefore, from Mr. McLure was, as it were, a very foundation of the cathedral activities which have crowded themselves into the life of Christ Church Cathedral in these later years."

James Palazzolo, 7 years old, of 2823 Howard street, suffered a fracture of the right wrist when he fell from a playground in the rear of 1512 North Jefferson avenue yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred after Palazzolo and several companions had been ordered from the shed roof by Dr. M. Hickey, who has an office at that address.

A Kindergarten Task to Domesticate Him—Just Feed

By NIKOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

THE husband of a New York clubwoman who has gone West to seek a divorce declares that if he had been a Cave Man instead of an average collaborator in his wife's ambitions and career he would have called upon how to face domestic bankruptcy.
Reading this announcement, I could not help thinking of an after-years ago, when the present divorce seeker complained to me that papers did not take women's clubs seriously enough.
"I think I will name a committee," she said, "to go down to see all the editors and ask them to take us more seriously."
The husband who now regrets he is not a Cave Man interposed: "The papers will take you seriously whenever you do something serious. Why not try it?"

My own secret thoughts echoed him; but even then I trembled for the future. What woman would not choose a Cave Man's rantings and ravings rather than cool, detached criticism?
What are they?
Women do prefer Cave Men, to be sure, because Cave Men make by the best husbands. For one thing, they are so easy to manage.
Consider the Cave Man characteristics. What are they?
A childlike desire for mastery and aggressive vanity.
The woman who wants to domesticate a Cave Man, who would set him happily to grinding corn for his flocks only a kindergarten task.
He has merely to concede his superiority and put him to work. If he tells him every little while how brave and strong he is and how she marvels that he ever found anything to interest him in her puny self, she can sit in a corner and read a fine steam for the rest of her life.

THE PLEASURES OF LEARNING

Jones thought he would have the laugh on his comrades by learning French BEFORE he arrived in France.

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TONIGHT

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Madam Fox's Garden—Part II.

AS soon as the racers started off, Tim Con took the bag of silver and ran for home, but first he gave the donkey a sharp cut with a stick, which made him grunt.
"That will make Mr. Fox think he had won," he thought.
"Oh! I am so near the color of the grass you could not keep track of me," answered Billy Frog.
"I believe I'll have this medal melted and set in the back of my green coat.
That will give me a distinguished look."

On ran the racers and just before they reached the pond on the opposite side of the meadow Mr. Fox stopped and looked back, for he had long leaps tell in a race.
"No, she isn't that," he said.
"I beat you by about a minute," said Billy, looking very wise. "You are a good runner, Mr. Fox, but you long leaps tell in a race."

Mr. Fox was too surprised to reply, and by that time Bunny Rabbit was there and Billy Frog told him he had won the race.
Of course Tom Tuttle was so far behind no one thought of him, and must surely return to attend to such matters."

"And her servants? What do they say?"

"I described the unusual menage that Vicky Van supported, and Mrs.
Schuyler was interested."

"How strange," she said. "She sounds to me like an adventuress!"

"No, she isn't that. She has money enough."

"Where does she get it?"

"I DON'T know, I'm sure. But she is a quiet, self-reliant little person, and not at all of the adventuress type."

"It doesn't matter," and Mrs.
Schuyler sighed. "I don't care anything about her personality. She must be bad or she wouldn't have killed my husband. I'm not defending him, but men don't go to the houses of complete strangers and get murdered by them! And I hope she will never be found, for it might bring out a story of scandal or shame that will always cling to Schuyler's memory. But, of course, she will come back, and she will plead innocence and lay all blame on Mr. Schuyler. Can't we buy her off? I would pay a large sum to keep her story from the world."

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Schuyler, but that can't be done."

"I thought you would help me—I'm so disappointed."

"Tears gathered in her eyes, and her voice trembled. I wished Bradbury had had this job instead of myself, for I am soft-hearted where feminine appeal is concerned, and I didn't know quite what to say."

But just then the two Schuyler sisters came into the library and I rose to greet them.

"Oh," cried Miss Rhoda. "It's all too awful! We can't believe it! I wish I had that girl here! You must find her, Mr. Calhoun—your must!"

"Yes," chimed in Mrs. Sarah. "She must be brought to judgment. An eye for an eye and a life for a life.
That's the Scripture law."

"Don't talk so, Sarah," pleaded Ruth Schuyler. "It won't bring Randolph back, to punish his murderer.

And think of the awful publicity!"

"I don't care for that. Murder has been done and murder must be avenged. I'm ashamed of you, Ruth, if you let any idea of personal distaste stand in the way of righteous law and order."

"I too," agreed Rhoda. "Spare no effort or expense, Mr. Calhoun, to find that wicked girl and have her arrested."

"I dare say you are right," and Mrs. Schuyler's acquiescence showed her to be more or less under the iron hand of the family opinion. "Of course, if you feel that way, I shall raise no obstacle to the law's progress. Whatever you advise, Rhoda, I agree to."

"Certainly you do. You are young,
Ruth, and you are not a Schuyler.
Why, the very name demands the strongest powers of the law.
I only fear that the most desperate efforts may not succeed. What is your opinion, Mr. Calhoun? Can they find that woman?"

THE scorn of the last two words, as uttered by Rhoda Schuyler's sharp tongue, is not to be reproduced in print.
"I think most probably, yes, Miss Schuyler. I think she must return sooner or later."

"Don't wait for that!" exclaimed Sarah. "Send people to search for her. Scour the country. Don't let her get away beyond retrieval. Offer a reward, if necessary, but get her!"

"A reward!" repeated Rhoda. "Yes, that's it. Put it in the paper at once;
a large reward for any information of Miss Van Allen."

"Stay," urged. "Don't decide on such measures so hastily. Might you not defeat your own purpose? Miss Van Allen doubtless will see the papers, wherever she may be. If she learns of the reward, she will hide herself more securely than ever."

"I think so, too," said Ruth, in her gentle voice. "I am sure, Rhoda, we oughtn't to do anything like that just yet. Oh, how hard it is to know what to do."

MILK SOUPS

Use Them Instead of So Much Meat.

THE United States Food Administration is encouraging in every way the use of milk.
Since it is one of the best meat substitutes and since meat is upon the list of foods to be conserved, let us modify our eating habits accordingly.
Try one of these milk soups instead of a serving of meat.

Peanut Soup.

Four cups thin white sauce, ½ cup peanut butter, 1½ teaspoons salt.
Add peanut butter to white sauce and serve at once.

Cream of Asparagus Soup.

To one cup white sauce add one cup milk and one cup asparagus puree, one cup of the water in which the asparagus was cooked may be used for part of the liquid.

Thin White Sauce.

(1 Cup.)

One tablespoon fat, 1 tablespoon barley or corn flour, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.
Melt fat in saucepan, stir in the flour, salt and pepper, and cook slowly without stirring until the mixture bubbles. Remove from the high heat, add the milk gradually, beating and stirring constantly until the sauce thickens.

Potato Soup.

Two potatoes, 4 cups milk, ½ onion, 2 tablespoons savory fat, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, salt, paprika, pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Cook the potatoes in boiling salted water until soft and put through a sieve.
Scald milk with onion and add milk to potatoes. Melt fat, add cornstarch and seasonings, and then the potato mixture. When thoroughly blended add chopped parsley.

Cheese Soup.

One-half onion, 2 tablespoons fat, 1 tablespoon rice flour or 2 tablespoons sage or tapioca, 1 quart milk, 1 egg or 2 egg yolks, ¼ cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, paprika. Cook the onion in the fat until tender, but not brown. Remove the onion, add the flour, then the milk, gradually, savouring out ¼ cup. Cook until smooth and add seasoning. If sage or tapioca is used in place of flour, add it to the milk and cook 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear. Pour the soup over the egg beaten with ¼ cup of cold milk. Add the grated cheese and serve immediately.

Cream of Tomato Soup.

One slice onion, 1½ cups canned tomatoes, 2 tablespoons savory fat, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, bit of bay leaf, 1½ cups milk, ¼ teaspoon sugar, salt, paprika, 1 clove. Cook onion with tomatoes 10 minutes and rub through strainer. Melt tomato sauce, fat, cornstarch, tomato puree and seasonings. Allow this mixture to become very cold. When ready to use, combine with the cold milk. Heat in a double boiler and serve. No soda is needed if this method is followed.

Oh, You, "Dixie" Time.

The Houston Post notes that "some Cincinnati feller is writing new words for 'Dixie,' and it discourages him with:

"No use. Few people have ever learned the old words. It is the 'Dixie' tune that plays the wild with human emotions and make a patriot want to yell and shoot holes through the enemy."

Mrs. B. C. Turner Wins
$100 Liberty Bond for Best Sale Anecdote

Four Judges Unanimous in Selecting Her Story as the Most Interesting of the Scores Sent in to the Post-Dispatch.

THE $100 Liberty Bond offered by the Post-Dispatch for the best true anecdote of the sale of a Bond of the Third series is awarded to Mrs. B. C. Turner, of 4386 West Pine boulevard. The anecdote which she submitted was chosen as the best by four judges to whom the scores of entries were submitted. It follows:

Would Bury Kaiser.

OLD Aunt Mandy shuffled up to buy a Liberty Bond—producing as part payment a cotton bag filled with quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies.
"You must have been a long time saving that money, Anny,"
"I shore was, Bos, hit was gittin' saved to help bury me, but sein' as how things is going on about dis war I done calkulated I better help bury de Kaiser first."

TWO other anecdotes approximated the interest in the winning one, in the estimation of the judges. They were:

A Slave Once Himself.

I WAS selling Liberty Bonds in an office building when a colored man, apparently about 80 years of age, came in. I said: "Don't you want to buy a Liberty Bond?"

He replied: "I sure do, lady.
I certainly want to help Presdent Wilson free them Germans.
I was a slave once myself."

MRS. J. B. D.
A Sacrifice That Counts.

MRS. C. W. SATTERFIELD, whose husband is buying bonds of previous issues on the weekly installment plan, was solicited by me to purchase of the third also.

She told me it could not be done, as they were paying on previous ones, and because of the high cost of food, fuel, etc., but she would if I could point out to her any way in which she could manage to do it. I went away with full intention of solving the problem.

Returning the next day I in-folded to her a plan that would call for a supreme sacrifice on her part.

I pointed out that to have her washing done she paid out $2 per week, and that if she would do it herself for 80 weeks she could buy two $100 bonds by the sacrifice.

I backed up my argument with the stories of sufferings of women in France and elsewhere, and she capitulated.

Mrs. Satterfield will do her own washing for 80 weeks to supply $100 to the Government, and has applied to the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. through her husband, for the bonds.

Beauty of Jewels Restored by "Gem Doctors"

WOMEN fortunate enough to possess precious stones should wear their gems frequently and not permit them to deteriorate through long disuse, according to jewelry experts. All Jewels, especially pearls, seem to be injured if kept too long in darkness.
It has also been shown that there is apparently some real basis for old superstitions that gems suffer when their owners are ill, which has been coupled the belief that they foretell disaster. Their beauty is said to have been often restored when worn by a sick person.

Health, however, accounts for the reputation some persons have gained as successful "doctors" of sick gems.
Turquoises quickly lose their brightness when the wearer is in bad physical condition, and diamonds diminish in lustre when the owner restoring their lustre, her patrons believing that she possesses some peculiar quality which redoubles the beauty of these stones.

Jewelers say that pearls may be affected by a thousand things. A diamond can be shut up too long, but that their beauty will return if worn for a time next to the body. A long bath in sea water often has the same effect. Some years ago it was reported that the pearls in a celebrated necklace of Mme. Thiers in the Louvre were shrinking in size and turning black. A sapphire, which it was once believed, would change to a deep violet tint if the lady wearing it had not been true to her lover, is in the South Kensington Museum in London.

There are many stories of rubies which, by changing color, foretold the death of some one near and dear to the wearer, and red coral was once supposed to grow pale when the owner was about to be seriously ill. Many still have a superstitious feeling about opals.

A thorough cleaning or a better setting will improve the appearance of jewels. Their color brightens or diminishes according to the light in which they are shown, and they may be affected by acids, but there seems no doubt that some persons have a quality which brings out the richest and deepest colors of precious stones.

From dyes are recruited the "gem doctors," who are called on from time to time to restore the beauty of famous jewels.

A Story of Love and Mystery

By CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

VICTORIA VAN ALLEN, known to her friends because of her motivating personality as Vicky Van, lived alone, with a maid, "Julia," in a small, narrow house off Fifth avenue, New York. She is fond of entertaining in semi-Bonaparte style. One of her parties at its height, when her friends knew that Mrs. Van Allen, one of her regular guests, is bringing home a millionaire, to meet Vicky for the first time.

Charles Calhoun, an attractive young lawyer, one of Vicky's closest friends (the narrator of the story), is not impressed with Somers, who turned out to be a middle-aged man, somewhat effusive in manner and staid in attire. Somers stands back of Vicky's chair during a brilliant game and while discussing a plan, lightly places his fingers on her shoulder.

"Vicky jumps up and runs out into the hallway, Somers following her delicately.
A moment later there is a commotion, one of the waiters employed for the occasion calls out for help, the next there and Somers is found unconscious."

A policeman, who comes to identify Somers' body as that of Randolph Schuyler, a Fifth avenue millionaire.

Calhoun and the police go to the Schuyler home around the corner. There they find the widow, a handsome, rather young and two elderly sisters of the slain man and notify them of the tragedy.

Identification develops the fact that Vicky Van has most of the time away from her home and that she calls in servants only when she gives large parties.

ter what is fit and proper for Randolph's burial ceremonies than you possibly can."

I began to realize that the sisters had a family pride which did not include their brother's wife in their councils. Apparently she was, or they deemed her, of lower birth or social standing. Personally, however, I greatly preferred the possibilities of the widow to the aristocratic hauteur of the sisters.

Ruth Schuyler made no objection to the proposition, and seemed relieved that her advice would not be required.

"Who is in the house where Mr.
Schuyler was—where he died?" was asked, hesitatingly.

"Only the police," I answered.
"Miss Van Allen has returned."

"Were there many people there—last night?"

LOSS OF DOYLE'S BATTING EXPLAINS SLUMP OF GIANTS

—JOHN J. MCGRAW.

New York's Second Sacker Was Hitting Over .400, Team's Manager Points Out.

BAD PLAYING ALSO HURTS

Surprising Downfall of Club Came After Brilliant Home Record of 18-1.

The absence of Larry Doyle and a general batting slump which overtook the club shortly after it hit the road are the main reasons ascribed by Manager McGraw of the Giants for the fact that thus far he has dropped six out of nine games in the West, after winning 18 of the first 19 starts against the Eastern clubs.

McGraw says the club fell down because it had scored just a little better than one run per game average in the West, up to yesterday. And the fact is, but for Cardinal errors, the Giants would not have scored against Sheldahl yesterday.

The removal of Doyle from second base was a big blow to the offensive power of the champions, according to the manager. Larry started out in the best form he has shown in recent years. He batted better than .400 for the first 15 games of the season, but then was forced to leave the club and submit to an operation for an abscess. He is now expected to return about July 1.

Bad Playing Follows Bad Hitting.

McGraw also claims that the Giants played bad ball in a couple of games at Cincinnati, and at least one in Pittsburgh. He explains this by saying the batting slump of the club has also affected its fielding.

On the other hand, the manager believes the team has been the odd game in the series at Pittsburgh. In one of the games, McGraw said his players hit the ball hard, but almost invariably right into the hands of the opposing fielders. In other words, the breaks went the other way and the New Yorkers were beaten.

Yesterday, the Giants scored more runs than they have in any game thus far played in the West. And aside from an error by the Cardinals, they still look head and shoulders above any club that has shown here thus far, and there is no apparent reason why they should not again pull away from the opposing clubs.

Ross Young a Real "Find."

McGraw is profuse in his praise of Ross Young, the 20-year-old player who is filling the shoes of Dave Robertson in right field. The "Little Napoleon" says Young is the best young player he has seen in many years. Young is built much on the order of Benny Kauff, and is just about as speedy as the "Ty Cobb of the Federal League." He has taken the left side of the plate and takes a healthy swing.

And with characteristic luck, there is no immediate prospect of Benny Kauff having to quit the club to answer a draft call, in fact, unless unforeseen developments crop out, Kauff probably will be able to stay out the season. He has taken his physical examination, but was told he would not be needed for several months. Dave Robertson and "Rube" Benton are the only two players McGraw has lost to war service thus far.

TANKS PURCHASE HURLER

BEDIENT FROM TOLEDO

NEW YORK, May 21.—The New York American League Baseball Club announced yesterday the purchase of pitcher Hugh Bedient from the Toledo club of the American Association.

Bedient, who formerly pitched for the Boston Braves, was held out and refused to report to the Toledo club this spring.

Pitcher Robert McGraw of the Yankees was called for by the National Army, receiving orders yesterday to report to his draft board at Pueblo, Colo. He is the fourth pitcher of the team to enter the service.

Baseball Attendance

in Two Cities Best in 5 Years, Foster Says

JOHN B. FOSTER, secretary of the Giants, yesterday minimized the pessimistic report that the National League might not finish the season because of paucity of attendance around the circuit. Foster believes the National League will not only finish the season, but that several clubs will make a profit.

"We had better crowds during the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati series than at any time during the past five years," said Foster. "That may sound strange, but it's true. Our clubs have been drawing well in every city we have visited thus far, with the exception of Boston."

"There's a sound reason for the small attendance in Boston, too. Fans in that city seldom begin to arrive at the stadium until Decoration Day. Then, too, when we played there, the weather was cold, decidedly unfavorable to baseball."

"I use no need to worry about small crowds thus far. We have drawn well at home, and will continue to do so if we can hold our place in the race. This will not only help us, but the visiting clubs as well."

Hendricks Demands Two Big League Players; 'Can't Find Any,' Is Rickey's Comeback

WHAT'S the matter with the Cardinals? Yesterday they lost their fourth successive game and went still deeper into the cellar. Various reasons have been advanced for the poor showing of a club which last season finished third. Herewith, are the statements of Manager Jack Hendricks and President Rickey in regard to the present situation:

By JACK HENDRICKS, Manager of the Cardinals.
"Until I get some real ball players, of known major league ability, to fill at least two places on my club, and unless some capable substitutes are furnished I can do nothing."

"I never hid behind an alibi in my life. I'll not begin now. I don't believe there's an official of the Cardinal club, nor a fan in St. Louis who expects me to get out and beat a championship club with the lineup I had yesterday. It can't be done."

"The Cardinals need an infielder. They also need an outfielder. Two of each kind are highly desirable. We don't want high school or college players, but men who are known quantities in the major leagues. Until they are furnished me I do not hope for much from the club I now manage."

"Cruise and Jack Smith need a rest. Both are in a slump. I can't put them out of the lineup because I haven't anyone to use in their places. Hornsby is out of it for a week at least. That's the situation, and it's bad enough."

By BRANCH RICKEY, President of the Cardinals.
"I am striving with all my power to furnish the material Manager Hendricks needs. But I have lost one more outfielder. I don't want him on my club and have passed him up."

"Steve Terkes, a capable second baseman, is under contract and may report June 1. But he is undecided whether he wants to play this season. I doubt if the Red Sox to get him and I shall proceed on the theory that he will not join us."

"Joe Sugden and Charley Barrett are going out immediately to look over some prospects reported to us. I may go out again tomorrow. Every club in the National League, with two exceptions, is facing the same shortage of players as the Cardinals. We will do all in our power to help Hendricks."

"Cruise, Smith and Hornsby are not hitting up to normal and have not, this season. When they do hit, the club seems bound to win. If they don't, we never will. That, in my opinion, is the sole reason for the bad showing this far."

"The pitching, I think, is all that could be desired and should improve instead of getting worse. I look for Manager Hendricks to shake up the club again today."

WRAY'S COLUMN

Football as Usual.

YALE and Harvard have shown that with practice on Tuesdays and Thursdays only, it was possible to develop a first-class line. The Yale baseball team is conceded to be almost up to normal standard this season.

But some of those who actually favor the return to intercollegiate football are far from being optimistic as to producing a first-class eleven under conditions existing at the "Big Three" today.

The mistake these fearful ones make is in thinking that a FIRST-CLASS football team, according to former standards, is expected or needed.

The necessary interest in the game and the needed help to war conditions can be obtained by turning out THE BEST TEAM CONDITIONS PERMIT. That is the standard at which to aim.

No Time for Practice.

AN inquiry conducted by the Post-Dispatch into conditions surrounding the development of university football teams this spring and next fall brought to light that if football is undertaken:

There will be only one hour daily for practice.

Football players must give up ALL LEISURE to military and football drills.

There will be available no paid coaches and no training table.

There will be no bands, cheer leaders or artificial enthusiasm builders.

There will be only mediocre talent available, as compared with former years.

Why all these conditions have become compulsory at Cambridge and New Haven, and not at West Point, where military conditions have existed ALL the time, is not clear.

West Point has annually undergone far more intensive military and student work in connection with football, than either Harvard or Yale asks of its undergraduates. Yet the army always has a first-class team, loyally and stoutly supported by the student body.

The Government and the President have expressly advised the continuance of intercollegiate sports. In addition to this is the possibility of producing a "Big Three" series of games for a tremendous "gate," which could be handed to the Red Cross.

Isn't it worth while attempting?

The Champion Game Hog.
BILL HOHNZOLLERN, the great exterminator of mice and of human kind, warmed up to his bloody job by long years of practice, it now appears. Evidently looking forward to the time when he would have to steel himself against butchering his fellow man, Kaiser Bill began inculcating himself to the sight of blood by the slaughter of wild animals.

The German Emperor, in fact, is the greatest game hog of which the world has any record. There are in possession of the United States Forest Service, statistics which show that Hohenzollern—which is fun for highwaymen—up to the year 1906 had killed 61,706 pieces of game, of which 4000 were stags.

No record exists as to the sanguinary fields that ran red with the blood of game between 1908 and August, 1914, when Bill de-

HOPPE WILL GIVE ALL CUE PLAYERS CHANCE AT TITLE

Champion to Enter Tournament Planned for Next November, $250 Entrance Fee.

Willie's Manager Says His Protege Will Play Anybody 6000 to 5000, for $2500.

Balkline billiard players who have been growing at World's Champion Willie Hoppe because he has refused to meet them except on prohibitive financial terms, may cheer up. Hoppe's manager, R. B. Benjamin, arrived in the city today with the announcement that Hoppe would meet them all this year.

"I have had a talk with the leading backers of professional billiards," Benjamin stated, "and the result of it was that Hoppe has agreed to compete in a national championship tournament to be held next November. The entrance fee to this tournament will be $250, and the Brunswick-Balke company will add $5000. The winner's share will amount to about $4000, counting a percentage of the gate. The event will be 18.3 balkline, and details as to place have not been concluded."

"In this way all the Cochran, Shafers, Morningstars and others may enter and have a chance at Hoppe."

Will to Play Match Games.

"If they do not like the tournament idea, we have another proposition," Benjamin continued, "one which can take place before the championship tournament. Willie will play anybody in the world 18.3 balkline, 6000 to 5000, for $2500, and will accept a side wager of $2000 and the usual championship split of the gate receipts."

"I do not consider that any of the players eligible will have a chance to beat Hoppe, either in the tournament or in match play. One Morningstar, however, may have a chance. Hoppe thinks he does not consider Cochran better than fourth among the balkline players of the country."

Had Money-Making Tour.

"Hoppe had a wonderful tour of nearly seven months and made a large sum of money. He has been in the United States for more than 100 days. He has been in the United States for more than 100 days. He has been in the United States for more than 100 days."

"Hoppe is not interested in the third-cushion championship and will not challenge for the title. His wonderful work at this game on tour has been the cause of his master at the angle game, however."

Hoppe is entering other activities in the money-making world. He will be the center of a new picture which will have for a theme "What Clean Living Will Do for an American Boy," and he will write a book on simplified methods of playing billiards.

Betzler Released.
Cards Now Have Only 17 Players.

Yerkes is Expected to Report Here June 1 in Deal for Knot Hole Infielder.

Bruno Betzler, who has been alternating between second base and right field for the Cardinals, was released to the Indianapolis club of the American Association today by President Branch Rickey.

Betzler goes to the minor league club in payment for Steve Yerkes, second baseman, formerly with the Red Sox and Cubs, who was signed to a Cardinal contract while Rickey was recently in the East.

In making the announcement the release of Betzler, Rickey reiterated that there was no reasonable assurance that Yerkes would report to the club June 1, but he was forced to send Betzler to the Hoosier club to fulfill his end of the obligation. Betzler will join Indianapolis tomorrow at Kansas City.

The release of Betzler further minimizes the Cardinals' playing force and leaves only Wallace and Lamore for utility duty. Red Smyth, who has been playing in the outfield, will be brought in and stationed at second base and will continue at the middle bag until Yerkes reports. Betzler's departure leaves the Cardinals with only 17 players on the roster.

Mike Gonzales, catcher, will play right field this afternoon and will continue to do so until another outfielder is obtained. The new batting order of the Cardinals for this afternoon, as announced this morning by manager Hendricks, follows:

Depended on the Mule

Speaking at a political gathering, Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger of Massachusetts referred to the many amusing incidents of the schoolrooms, and related a little incident which has since become famous as a teacher in a public school was instructing a youthful class in English when she paused and turned to a small boy named Jimmy Brown. "James," said she, "write on the board, 'Richard can ride the mule if he wants to.'"

"Yes," replied the boy, to the satisfaction of all concerned.

"Now, then," continued the teacher, when Jimmy had returned to his place, "can you find a better form for that sentence?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the prompt response of Jimmy. "Richard can ride the mule if the mule wants him to."
